New Summer Hours: June 13- August 13

I know that it has been cold and rainy much of the past month, but summer will soon be here and with it come new opportunities! As you have probably noted, many government units are experiencing lower revenues and searching for ways to operate more efficiently and within their new shrinking budgets. Though our funds are currently strong, we must do the same to avoid financial difficulties down the road. One of the things we are going to try is shorter summer hours. By reducing hours across our system by 12 hours a week, we will be able to improve service to our patrons through better utilizing existing staff while also being able to absorb any attrition. Our goal is not to reduce services, but to be more pro-active and capable of providing important services when they are most needed. We will be asking for your input throughout the following months in various areas to make sure we are prioritizing and providing the right mix of materials, programs, and information support. Our world is changing rapidly and our library is committed to adapting and learning rapidly with it to ensure that we can fulfill our mission of being "Your Guide to the World".

Tales to Share Weird but True! 2

Written by National Geographic

Did you know that bees visit about 5 million flowers to make one average-sized jar of honey? That humans and slugs share more than half of their genes? Or that the largest spider in the world is wider than a basketball? Kids will devour this book which is the second of a spin-off of the award-winning National Geographic Kids Magazine. It is packed full with 300 outrageous facts. The wild and wacky trivia will make for hours of entertainment, fun, and education. The pictures are beautiful and engaging. The text is interesting and varied. This is a unique read for the non-fiction reader.
